Your Life Load Self-Check

A quick, honest snapshot of where you are right now — no judgment, no pressure. This one-page check-in helps you see your time, energy, and money clearly so you know exactly where to focus first.

2026 SELF-CHECK

QUICK & HONEST

Life Load Meter

Start here. Before anything else, let's get an honest read on how you're feeling right now — not how you think you should feel, but how you actually feel when you wake up in the morning.

1

Rate Your Overwhelm

On a scale of 0 to 10, how overwhelmed do you feel right now? Circle or write your number honestly.

0 = completely at ease 10 = completely overwhelmed

2

Quick Check — Which Apply to You?

- I wake up feeling behind.
- I can't keep track of everything I've committed to.
- I avoid looking at my calendar or to-do list.

Top 3 Stressors This Week

Write them down. Just naming them takes away some of their power. Don't overthink it — whatever comes to mind first.

There are no right or wrong answers here. Honesty with yourself is the only thing that matters on this page.

Time & Energy Snapshot

Most of us dramatically underestimate how much we give away — and overestimate how much we have left for ourselves. These three numbers tell an important story. Fill them in as honestly as you can.

Work or School

Hours per week dedicated to work, school, or professional obligations — including commuting and prep time.

My hours: ____

Other People's Needs

Hours per week spent on family care, helping others, errands for people you love, or caregiving of any kind.

My hours: ____

Time Left for Me

Hours per week that are genuinely yours — not scrolling out of exhaustion, but actual rest or things you chose freely.

My hours: ____

Reflection: The biggest thing I'd change about how I spend my time is: _____

Money Snapshot

You don't need exact numbers right now. A good-faith estimate is enough to get a clear picture. The goal here isn't to stress you out — it's to give you a starting point so nothing stays hidden in the background.

Three Numbers to Write Down

Total I Think I Owe (Guess)

Add up credit cards, loans, medical bills, anything you owe someone. Ballpark is fine.

$ _____

Number of Debts, Cards, or Loans

How many separate things are you paying off? Each one counts as one.

 # _____

Subscriptions & Monthly Bills

Streaming, apps, memberships, utilities — how many do you pay each month?

 # _____

One Yes or No

Do you have all your debts and bills listed in one place?

✓ Yes

You have a list and you know what you owe.

☐ No

It's scattered or you've been avoiding it.

If your answer is No, that's okay — and it's actually the most common answer. The next step is just making that list, nothing more.

Relief Targets

This is the most important part of the whole check-in. These three questions help you get specific about what "better" actually looks like for you — not some ideal version, but real, meaningful relief you can actually feel.

Your One-Thing Fix

If you could fix just ONE thing in the next 30 days, what would it be? Not the whole list — just one. Write it down.

It would be:

_____

_____

Life Feeling 30% Lighter

If your overall life felt 30% lighter than it does right now, what would be different? What would you notice first?

What would be different:

_____

_____

Money Stress 30% Lower

If your money stress specifically dropped by 30%, what would change? How would you feel on a Monday morning?

What would be different:

_____

What to Do With Your Snapshot

Now that you've filled it in, you have something real to work with. This snapshot is the beginning — not the end. Here are two paths depending on where you feel the most weight right now.

Turn This Into a Money Plan

To take your Money Snapshot and turn it into a real, working plan — with all your debts and bills in one place and a clear path forward — use the Debt & Bills Dashboard 2026.

It takes the guesswork out and gives you a single, calm view of your finances.

Turn This Into a Life Reset

If your time and energy numbers felt alarming — or your overwhelm score is high — your next step is a full reset, not more planning. Use the 2026 Overwhelm Reset Guide to walk through a structured 7-day life reset.

Simple, step-by-step, and designed for people who are already running on empty.

You don't have to do both at once. Pick the one that addresses your biggest pain point from your Relief Targets section and start there.
